Our Standards. Your Assurance.

What is Halal?

Halal is an Arabic word and relates to everything which is permitted in Islam. In terms of nutrition, Halal is used to designate food and beverages classified as permissible in accordance with the Islamic law.

What is a Halal Product?

Halal foods are products, which are manufactured in compliance with the Islamic dietary and purity norms. Good and healthy (Tayyib) products which are processed under hygienic and contamination-free conditions and which comply with high quality requirements, ethical and ecological values.

Why Halal Certification?

Over the past decade, Halal standards are well on the way to establishing a new quality benchmark which incorporates best practices and high ethical values. Consequently, Halal products and services have continuously gained global economic importance and recognition. In addition, 57 Islamic countries (OIC) have developed Halal standards for the industry, trade and consumer protection. The Halal certification is supporting a smooth B2B, increases export opportunities, ensures new business markets and creates confidence.
